Non-Partisan League Convenes

Under the chairmanship of M. J. Sly, of Strathmore, the president, the first gathering of supporters of the Alberta Non-Partisan League, will be held in the City Hall on Wednesday of this week.

This meeting has been called for the purpose of organizing the permanent organization of the league and, although the gathering will not be a large one, it is expected plans will be laid which will result in active work to increase the number of supporters of the movement, and that by next autumn the membership will have grown to thousands.

At present organization work is only being carried on in one or two constituencies, but it is intended to extend it gradually all over the province, and by next fall those who have organized the movement expect to see it assume formidable proportions.

Organizers Are Paid

"Do they expect men are going to give up their regular occupations and do this work for nothing," asked a Calgary man who has closely connected with the league this morning in discussing the criticism that the organizers receive $5 of every $10 they take in for a membership. These men work hard and they are strictly paid to be paid in proportion as they succeed."

What happens the other $10?"

"That goes into the general fund," was the reply. "The money is to be used for advancing the aims and objects of the league, and the more support it may be able to carry for election and other purposes, the more it comes from improper sources, as we come from the league and the political parties."

Aims of League

"The aim of the league is to promote independence in politics and to cut away with corruption and the curse of the patronage system."

The idea of forming the league originated in North Dakota, where the farmers have succeeded in carrying all before them, and have now elected their own governor.

In Saskatchewan also the movement is making big progress, and has secured numerous members with headquarters in Swift Current. The headquarters for Alberta are Calgary.

SHOULD STAY AT HOME

The Herald agrees with those who think that it would be better if, so far as possible, the people should stay at home. It is difficult to see how it is not difficult to see how he might do injury to the province of Canada.

Mr. Rogers is at present under the severe criticism of a judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, sitting as a commissioner. He is charged with, to say the least, lack of frankness in his testimony before that commission, and also with having spent public money in Manitoba for the purpose of securing a political contribution. While Rogers under these charges is hardly at all and proper person to represent Canada in the supreme council of the Empire, and the premier would be well advised to have him at home and take instead a number of his cabinet whose political position is above reproach.

The people of Canada are rather fond of Hon. Robert Rogers. He has been before their eyes for a number of years, and his career, while politically successful according to some standards, has not been one to which the Conservative party is able to point with pride.

That, however, is by the way. What people are asking just now is why he should be chosen for the distinguished honor of accompanying the premier on a mission to which only the most unblemished reputations should be admitted—Calgary Herald.

I.O.D.E. NOTES

The Foothills Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, will be "At Home" to the people of Claresholm and district from 4:30 to 10:00 on the evening of February 27.

The "At Home" has been arranged to commemorate the glorious anniversary of the famous battle of Paardeburg, and will be a most interesting affair. A short musical program is being prepared, and refreshments will be served. Everyone is cordially invited, and the chapter hopes that the gentlemen as well as the ladies will enjoy their evening program.

The regular monthly meeting of the chapter will be held on Tuesday, February 27, at 8:00 p.m. in the parish hall. Since the snow has melted Principal Mackenzie is very busy instructing the boys in the jump line, for the standard efficiency tests, and great progress is becoming manifest along these lines.

Re Provincial Elections

E. Michener, leader of the Opposition, has again expressed himself as opposed to an election in this province, before the war is over and the soldiers have returned home to vote. The government has expressed their willingness to allow the soldiers to elect two members at large to represent them in the house. There, two members, together with representatives already in uniform who will be returned unopposed, will give the soldiers good representation in the legislative assembly in case an election is held. The government's idea of a postponed election will be made known some time this week.

Electrically Treated Crops

For several years experiments on the effect of overhead electrical discharges on crops have been carried out at Lincoln Maine, Dunsmuir, Canada, by Miss E. C. Dudgeon, with the scientific cooperation of Professor J. H. Priestley and Mr. L. J. Jorgensen. The leakage of discharge over the control plot showed the plants, but not entirely, prevented by the interception between the plants of a well-heated wire screen three feet above the level of the charged network. Despite this leakage, the electrical plot showed the remarkable increase of 30 per cent in grain and 58 per cent straw as the pre-emptive effect of the discharge, which was applied on the average five hours daily for 108 days. The crops were not heavy, but the superiority of the crop on the electrified plot was marked from the earliest stages of growth, and it was less from the dryness of the season.

Meatless Days in Olden Time

There is a precedent for a legal enactment for a meatless day in the middle of the 16th century when there was a law in this country enacted to abstain from flesh for political and economic reasons, not only in Lent and on Fridays, but also on Saturdays and Wednesdays. The object was the strengthening of the nation through the encouragement of the meat of meat in London taverns during Lent, 1563, were put in the stocks all night and the owners of the taverns was set in the pillory—London Times.

Fruit Growing In British Columbia

Has Become World Famous for the Quality of Fruit Grown

Canada's Pacific Province of British Columbia is famous all over the world for the fruit that is raised there. Although the industry is of comparatively recent origin, it has within the last two or three years made very rapid strides. The value of the fruit crop of 1910 was approximately $2,000,000; the value of the 1911 crop is estimated at $2,700,000. One of the most valuable crops of the province is the apple. The total output of this district during 1910 has been about 2,000 carloads of fruit, in addition to 1,000 carloads of vegetables. The apples grown principally to the prairie provinces, with Australia, South Africa and Great Britain. Government exhibits were shown at the Royal Horticultural Society, London, England—the fruit of fruit growing in the district consecutive years, against all comers.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dismembered, Fearing Being Kissed

"Somewhere in France" an exceedingly comely damsel insisted on being married to a British "tommy" who performed a very heroic deed. She saluted him at least a dozen times, and indeed, by another admirer, when pushed aside by another admirer, she fairly set him burning to show her appreciation in the same sweet way. At last a score of others followed suit, and goodness only knows when she would have ended had not the gallant soldier sought refuge in flight. He afterwards remarked that he would rather take all the Germans in France and Belgium than go through such an ordeal again.

Britain's Losses in Ships

Sir Norman Hill, secretary of the Liverpool Steamship Owners' Association, calculates that the effect of the German campaign on British shipping has been as follows: In the twenty-seven months of war from August, 1914, to October, 1916, 435 steam vessels of more than 1,000 tons, representing 1,744,000 gross tons, were lost through war perils. Great Britain started the war with 3,000 steamships, of 16,000,000 gross tons, so that the losses represent 12 per cent in numbers or 11 per cent in tonnage, being less than one-tenth of one per cent of the total. The value of the fleet was estimated at 4,000,000,000, of which 10 per cent, or 400,000,000, was lost. Sir Norman, who adds "A 10th of the total in 100,000,000, would have been a London Fair Day."

The highly organized, finely strong nervous system of women subjects them to terrors of nervous apprehension which men can never appreciate.

There is no danger in this respect to remedy in the world so completely restores womanly health as the wonderful "Favorable Prescription" (invented by Dr. R. V. Pierce).

Chatham, Ont.—"A few years ago I suffered a general breakdown and was very weak and thin. I was in an awful state of mind. I was at times discouraged and at times thought I would lose my mind. I have Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gave me immediate relief, and completely cured me in a very short time. My sister used it with good results also. She was in a very delicate condition. I got her to take it and two bottles cured her completely."

"I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's medicine; they are all that is recommended of them."—Mrs. Margaret Butant, 87 Park Ave., Chatham, Ont.

Holowness of Materialism

Rudyard Kipling on the Relative Advantages of Money Making and Other Pursuits

When Rudyard Kipling visited McGill University a few years ago, he chose as the theme of his address to the student body the holowness of the materialism. Kipling warned the young men of McGill about the pursuit of money as an all-absorbing occupation in life.

The fact that Kipling chose this subject is evidence worthy of note of the importance to the nation of the ideals conceived at college by its active-minded young men, those who are destined for a certain moral and intellectual leadership. ## Women as Bankers

Most Successful, Say Women of London

In a recently published government scheme for a British trade in the Mediterranean by sea. It is fair to assume that women will in future take a share in purely clerical work. The Federation of Women Workers, however, thinks they should not be confined to clerical work, and brings out the following facts:

A woman has been appointed as manager of a branch of the London and Midlands Bank.

Others are being trained for similar positions.

At the exams, following the Gilchrist lectures on banking at King's College four of the 22 candidates gained over 80 per cent of marks were women.

One, Miss Rose Kingston, of the head office of the London and South Western Bank, gained the first place with a note of approbation from the examiner, Sir John Packer.

Seven women from the same bank gained prizes for stenography.

The Canadian Sailor

Spent Opportunity for Naval Volunteers to Assist the Empire

It is a mistake to say, as so many of us do, that we are separated from the Motherland by the sea. It is a wrong conception. The seas unite us, and the British Empire is a single entity. Without them its component parts would be far asunder. The very reason that Britain has extended her sway throughout the world is because of the British seamen, and the splendid navy. The sense of relief that the British seamen have in the overseas dominions is due to the fact that the seas combine and weld together the various units of Empire, blending them into the loveliest community that man has ever known. It is the envy of her enemies, the cyano-sphere of the world.

The frontiers of that Empire are not the coasts of Great Britain, but the shores of Germany, Australia and Turkey. Their navies remain pent up in their ports and venture not only to return in haste and confusion.

Canada's sailors, and the British sailors, have had their shores guarded, not upon this continent, but far across the seas. This is an imperative necessity. And when we come and we come to consider our future, we must consider the future of the British Empire.

What a mighty fleet it is to use, and it will remain so while the British navy remains in the world. In the Pacific different conditions will confront us, and we must be prepared to meet them. Australia, New Zealand, Hong Kong, the Straits Settlements, and the East Indies, are all part of the British Empire, and we must be prepared to meet them.

Each of the island powers, for being they are, and the British dominions in China and Malaya, and the British Empire, must unite to keep the Pacific. Canada must unite to keep the Pacific. Canada must unite to keep the Pacific.

LETTER FROM PTE. E. H. SAGE

Dear Friend Eric—If I remember right you asked me to write to you, so I am improving my first opportunity
I have run across several Claresholm names, among whom are J. Barr, Was-gel, P. Ballard and a few others. Bar-lard is in the same company and we often talk over the old times, back in Claresholm. We were over a month in the trenches and had a time of it, most of the time. We crossed on the Olympic which is one of the finest ships I have ever seen. She is about nine hundred feet long. We had a few passages, as the pond was like a lake, but a good many of the cleverest men on board were seasick, prominent among whom was myself, at least. I felt like it.

When I arrived in Liverpool we were brought by train direct to this camp.
We were in a modified quarantine since we arrived, but expect to get out soon and get our old days' leave.

I suppose we will get to France in about three months. At least, that is what the boys who are already here tell us; but it looks doubtful to me as the boys here had very little training.

When I am in London on pass I will try to get some photos and I will send you one to put in your office. Well, I am glad to hear that you have the best of wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year.

UNCLE SAM'S PATIENCE EXHAUSTED

The state department on Monday made public a memorandum presented by Dr. Paul Ritter, the Swiss minister, acting for Germany, proposing a discussion with the United States over the new submarine campaign.

Germany proposes to negotiate for the safety of U.S. shipping, provided the "commercial blockade" of England is not interfered with.

The U.S. government has replied that it cannot enter into negotiations unless Germany restores the pledge and withdraws the proclamation unrestricted submarine warfare.

To Becloud Issue
Official opinion has solidified that Germany's suggestions of negotiations cannot be considered until she has been sunk in a campaign which has brought forth the moral condemnation of most of the neutral world.

The Growth of the Fighting Machine Constituted by the Army Has Been Little Short of Marvellous, and All Resources of The Empire Have Been Mobilized for Supreme Effort

Ed. L. Keen correspondent of the United Press at London, reviews the year 1916 as follows:

John Bull spent a goodly portion of 1916 applying the lessons he learned the previous year.

From the Dardanelles to Mesopotamia, from Neu Chapelle to Loos, from Soona to Aethen, he hunkered along, but, as subsequent history has demonstrated, all the time gathering momentum. Out of every strategic failure, every unfulfilled expectation, both military and political, he managed to learn something, and the lessons applied.

First of all the lessons of centralized power in the direction of war, of internal government, of domestic economy and of efficiency, thoroughly learned, led him to the day when George into a practical dictatorship over all those branches of British activity.

The Asquith Cabinet fell because British public opinion, almost unanimously aligned behind the little Welshman, demanded supreme efficiency in England's fight for life and honor. The new cabinet of Mr. Lloyd George, the breaker of precedents, was a new departure away from the old ministerial machinery and its limitations, the loopy-kind, slow-moving, over-embellished cabinet, a small, compact war cabinet of five members, which took this step with the eager acquiescence of John Bull, and which, generally, and generally, and generally, things, showed the transformation in his character which the war has brought, by standing by the side of Lloyd George.

By reason of his early successful adventures in the Near East, he gathered invaluable knowledge in the matter of organization and equipment which he has this year applied in other quarters. As a result of the failure of his troops in the West in the spring and summer of 1915, to attain their desired objective, he made certain changes in personnel, easily improved his organization, behind the lines, and above all learned that the only way seriously to meet the German front, was with a preponderant supply of shells and shells.

He lost Bulgaria to the allied cause, but the experience he acquired in that process enabled him to conquer Rumania. Just now, by the force of war, Rumania appears to be a doubtful military asset, it is not a liability, but at the same time, it is the only element of the army which the allies have a diplomatic stake in.

Early in 1916 he adopted conscription. Had it been introduced a year before, the war might have been won today. Englishmen had been used in unprecedented fashion to their king and country's call under the voluntary system, but it was only the certainty of ultimate conscription that finally brought the conscription to five million men. The making of this huge army, and the raw material into an efficient military machine has been a gigantic task, but it is now a reality.

Little less than miraculous has been the development of the munitions industry in this country since the last year. From the star, Britain has been the treasury of the allies; now it has become their arsenal. When Mr. Lloyd George began turning England's factories into munitions factories, there were no German weapons manufacturing in Germany. There was a time when on certain sections of the battle line British gunners were limited to rounds per day. Upon America and Japan Britain was depending for the most part of its supplies of machine

Holigoland's Secrets Not So Cleverly Kept—Thrilling Story of Narrow Escape

Holigoland was British in 1800. It was just a lump of waste rock in the North Sea, and it was not a particularly important place. It was just a lump of waste rock in the North Sea, and it was not a particularly important place. It was just a lump of waste rock in the North Sea, and it was not a particularly important place.

As a secret service agent, I was interested in that part of the island. I was interested in that part of the island. I was interested in that part of the island.

But we were not allowed to see much. We did not even know in what direction the secret service was working. We were under the closest supervision.

Practically the whole of England's war industry was centered in the island. It was necessary for the supply of the island's needs to be maintained.

Moreover, England is not merely supplying her own army. She is supplying the army of the allies. She is supplying the army of the allies.

By giving all due credit to the allied strategy in general and to Gen. Haig's military genius in particular, as well as to the admitted importance of the British army in the war.

There was a time when on certain sections of the battle line British gunners were limited to rounds per day. Upon America and Japan Britain was depending for the most part of its supplies of machine guns, heavy artillery and high explosives. Now these conditions are all reversed. More than 4,000 private guns in England, 95 per cent. of whom before the war had never produced a gun, a shell or a cartridge, now are turning out munitions of one sort or another.

Just after the Munitions Act was passed, Mr. Lloyd George started the country by announcing that eleven new government arsenals had been provided for. Today there are more than ninety, most of them producing big guns, howitzers or high explosives. The weekly output of shell cartridges is now greater by a factor of ten than it was at the time of the act.

One factory built in the last year, the general output of heavy artillery has increased by several hundred per cent. The output of machine guns and light weapons has increased by nearly fourfold, of whom half a million are now in the hands of the allies.

Break for Freedom

How the Plan of Two Interned German Officers Nearly Succeeded

An ingenious method of escape was employed by two German officers who escaped from a detention camp, but were subsequently arrested and locked back.

The officers conceived the idea of escaping from the shed as was usual and consequently hid themselves underneath it. By using a two-inch ladder from which the sixth man descended, they managed to get outside the shed.

The greatest naval battle this year was our victory in the Shagratik. The German fleet retired to its base and left the British in command of the sea.

When the German People Finally Realize They Are Not Fighting for the Freedom of Germany, but Their Own Continued Political Submission, a Reaction May Be Expected

Plans for the Next War Germany Making Plans for Another War When She Is Better Prepared

A very useful commentary upon Germany's peace proposals is furnished by an article reproduced here which appeared in December in the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin, a semi-official newspaper.

"We began this war a year too soon. When we have secured a German peace we must begin at once a reorganization of our army. Every loss must be made up. Establishments that were lost must be replaced. The army must not only be retrained, but it must be retrained on new lines of increased efficiency, forming that the economic, the kernel of Germany's strength in preparation for the next war."

"We must carry out a radical advance, in view of lessons learned in this war. Our country lacks a very material or concrete plan of new material, and must organize a plan in the future. We must organize a plan in the future. We must organize a plan in the future."

Every technical or semi-technical officer must be equipped with a plan in the future. We must organize a plan in the future. We must organize a plan in the future."

The Board of Trade held its first meeting in Mr. Paul Clark's office, Tuesday evening and judging from the long list of members already paid up, it is to be a live organization. The question of hotel accommodation was the most important subject on discussion, and it was decided to meet with the town council and with them arrange at once for the proper accommodation for the travelling public.

At the citizens' meeting, last week, to consider what steps should be taken to open up the hotel here, a number of suggestions were made, and before the meeting closed it was decided to form a Board of Trade for Granum. Mr. Geo. Richards was elected president; F. W. West, vice-president; Paul Clark, secretary; E. A. Brown, D. M. Leyden, T. Dolan, L. H. Cochran, Percy Smith and Geo. Gregory. The membership fee was placed at $1.00. Let all the citizens unite and do what is in their power to help the Board realize their undertaking, especially in the matter of hotel accommodation.

EDITORIAL COURTESY

It is said that the return of a manuscript to its author may imperil the life of the Chinese editor and that only by the invariable use of the most graceful, courteous and apologetic language can he expect to avert the awful wrath of the contributor whose manuscript is declined, and save his own editorial head from with decapitation. The following letter from a Chinese editor, accompanying the return of a manuscript, strongly denounces the practice and a realization of the direful consequences if the recipient took offence thereat.

"Most honored brother of the sun and the moon: Your letter is received—of your text! I kiss the ground before you and implore you to authorize me to speak and live. Your manuscript has permitted itself to be looked upon by us, and we have read it with the greatest interest. I swear on the tomb of my ancestors that I have never read anything more excellent. It is with fear and terror that I send it back. If I allowed myself to print this treasure, the president would immediately order me to use it forever as an example, and forbid me to dare to print anything inferior. My literary experience enables me to declare that such literary pearls are only created once in ten thousand years, and this is why I take the liberty of returning it to you."

Ralph Smith, minister of Finance in the British Columbia Government died at Victoria this week.
